Priest's amazing healing touch cures pain that doctors can't!

By RICHARD STONE/ Correspondent

AVIGNON, France — A priest with amazing healing powers cures people of everything from severe back pain to shingles — simply by laying his hands upon them, say astounded patients and doctors.

Father Andre Allemant has had such incredible success that doctors and therapists actually refer their most difficult cases to him.

"I have had patients with migraines, dermatitis and back pain who are not responding to traditional medication," declared local physician Michel Bonavaron.

"I suggested they see Father Andre. Often his treatment works. He has a definite gift for healing."

Despite the 71-year-old priest's impressive results, he asks no payment — except that his cured patients ease the suffering of other people.

"I start a chain of help, love and goodwill," he said. "That's the real miracle."

The humble priest sees about 20 cases a week in his small two-bedroom apartment. One woman, secretary Marie Laure Sala, had a painful cyst on her wrist that doctors repeatedly removed — but it kept growing back.

After one session with Father Andre her wrist pain disappeared. Within a week the cyst was gone for good. "It's a miracle," she rejoiced.

Six months ago, Thierry Pignocchi, an insurance clerk, was suffering so badly from shingles on his left side that he couldn't move. None of the medication he was taking was helping.

"Father Andre reached out all over," Pignocchi said. "The next day, the shingles didn't hurt — and gradually they disappeared. I was cured."

European kick-boxing champion Brigitte Pastor thought her career was over recently when she ruptured a disk in her back.

"I was in excruciating pain and barely able to walk," she said. "I was living on painkilling injections."

The priest moved his hands over her back. And after three sessions, she suddenly felt a searing pain rush up her spine. 'worse.' But as I yelled out in pain, an immense wave of calmness flowed over me, then there was no pain whatsoever.

"I rushed to the hospital for an X ray and there was no trace of the ruptured disk. It had totally cleared up.

"I went back to my boxing the very next day and soon became European champion.

"And now I'm training underprivileged children in my sport."

The elderly priest believes he heals people by channeling energy from his body into theirs.

"I feel a surge of power flood through me as I concentrate on my patients' illnesses," he explained. "I sense their own natural defenses are blocked, which is why they become ill. I send them waves of God's love and power, which restores their own ability to heal themselves."

'Father Andre reached out and I felt a warming sensation all over'

ESCAPED BAT BOY SIGHTED IN TEXAS!

FBI conducting secret manhunt!

GLOBAL NEWS SERVICE

A half human "bat boy" that escaped from a research facility in Wheeling, W. Va., back in 1992 has turned up in Austin, Texas, for the second time in two years, alarming federal officials who consider the creature to be totally unpredictable — and dangerous!

The feds aren't talking to avoid public panic. But FBI sources say that an ongoing nationwide search for the bat boy has heated up since 19-year-old Trisha O'Bannon spotted him in a public park on March 17.

Oddly enough, Miss O'Bannon also spotted the creature in the fall of 1992. And while authorities initially thought the young woman might have been lying about her second encounter, they are now convinced she is telling the truth.

At the request of officials, Miss O'Bannon has denied all interview requests. But as one source put it: "For the first time in two years, we have a solid lead.

"If we don't capture this bat boy now, we never will."

As Weekly World News and other major media reported previously, the bat boy was captured in a West Virginia cave on Sept. 10, 1992.

The 2-foot, 65-pound creature escaped from a research facility a few weeks later, sparking a America's most exciting newspaper does it again!

Weekly World News earns four of journalism's highest honors!

Weekly World News has done it again!

America's most exciting newspaper has received four prestigious international journalism awards — including a coveted Lifetime Achievement Award presented to senior editor Susan Jimison.

The French Academy of Journalistic Sciences awarded its highest honor to Mrs. Jimison in recognition of "her many years of reporting, editing and exposing the masses to the wonders of the universe."

The veteran reporter traveled to Paris in February to accept her silver trophy at a dinner attended by top journalists and dignitaries from across Europe and Asia.

"I feel honored and humbled to receive this award," she said. "Working for Weekly World News has given me the opportunity to write stories that will be read by millions of people all over the world. I hope I have used this opportunity to enrich the lives of my readers."

Mrs. Jimison, 52, is the first American to receive the FAJS award, considered by many journalists to be even more prestigious than the renowned Pulitzer Prize.

Senior editor Jack Alexander recently received the Journalist of the Year award from the European Council of Newspaper Professionals.

Alexander, 66, is the first newsman to win the award three times. He previously was honored in 1987 and 1992.

"Mr. Alexander has set a fine example for journalists the world over during his long and distinguished career," said ECNP president Wilhelm Gorman at last month's award ceremony in Bern, Switzerland. Gorman announced that beginning in 1995, the honor will officially be known as the Jack Alexander Journalist of the Year Award.

The NEWS also recently received the Golden Page Award for its "dynamic presentation in layout and design."

"Weekly World News traditionally presents its readers with eye-pleasing and exciting page layouts that make reading the paper both a pleasure and an adventure," said a spokesman for the 23,000-member British International Newspaper Alliance that presented the award.

"Many daily newspapers would be well-advised to follow the lead of Weekly World News when it comes to ferreting out the difficult stories and presenting them to readers in an attractive, readable and understandable package," said Alliance Chairman Herman Tobh, who presented the award to NEWS managing editor Sal Ivone.

For its coverage of UFOs, the NEWS has won a Diamond Certificate of Achievement from the Journalism School at Germany's University of Stuttgart.

"And while many newspapers turn their backs on even well-founded reports that extraterrestrials have visited Earth and ignore the consequences of these occurrences, Weekly World News continues to lead the international journalism community in reporting the entire spectrum of UFO activity," said Dr. Heinrich Kreighoff, chairman of the selection committee, in presenting the award to NEWS Editor-in-Chief Eddie Clontz.

Thousands of women having sex dreams about Bill Clinton!

Thousands of women all across the country are having intimate dreams about President Clinton, an expert reveals.

"Not since John F. Kennedy has there been a President who would be likely to inspire an erotic thought," says psychiatrist Dr. Anthony Pietropinto.

"Clinton is young, good-looking and charismatic."

Here are some typical nighttime fantasies:

● A 27-year-old travel and Vice President Al Gore.

● In a series of dream flings with Clinton, a 34-year-old book editor made love to him the night before his Inauguration and after he was sworn in, "we picked up where we left off."

● A 31-year-old computer

suit she wore to the Inauguration.

As shocking as the dreams seem, they are perfectly normal and easily explained, experts say.

"If you've had sex dreams about the President, don't worry. You're not alone," said Dr. Pietropinto.

"Clinton has a reputation, whether true or not, as a la-

Even though the dreams are sexual in nature, they don't necessarily indicate a woman really wants to sleep with the President, experts say.

It may be a fascination with the power a President has that brings on the intimate dreams.

Experts reveal . . .

Top myths about the common cold

GLOBAL NEWS SERVICE

American citizens suffer through about 400 million colds every year, but there are still many myths surrounding the common cold, say experts.

Here are the most common — and the facts behind each.

MYTH: Most colds are spread when someone coughs in your face.

FACT: That can happen, but most colds are passed through nasal secretions. For example, a cold sufferer can get nasal secretions on his hands, then touch a table, leaving the cold virus there.

And another person can get the virus on his hand by touching the same surface. That's why cold sufferers should wash their hands frequently.

And if you're around someone who has a cold, be sure to wash your hands frequently as well.

MYTH: Vitamin C prevents colds.

FACT: There's no convincing scientific evidence that this is true. "Some weak data suggests that taking vitamin C when you have a cold may relieve some of its symptoms. But even if that's true, it's probably no more effective than many readily available cold remedies," said Dr. Neil Schachter.

MYTH: You're more likely to catch a cold when you're cold.

FACT: No. Even studies of people who have been exposed to cold weather, then exposed to the cold virus, have found they're no more susceptible to catching colds.

"Colds are more frequent in cold weather because people are more likely to stay indoors where the cold virus spreads much more easily," Dr. Schachter explained.

MYTH: Antibiotics are effective in treating colds.

FACT: "Not so. Colds are viral illnesses and antibiotics don't work against viruses," explained Dr. Neil Solomon.

"Sometimes antibiotics can help treat a complication of a cold, like an ear infection, but they never help the cold itself."

Dog returns home — dragging two human legs!

ANTIOCH, Ill. — A dog went out to play in the wooded area near its home — and came back with two human legs!

Friendly the German shepherd found the grisly body parts on two separate outings, a week apart.

Cops say the legs are those of a woman, probably between 16 and 25 years of age, who was killed within two weeks of the gruesome discovery. The legs have outfitted the dog with a tracking device hoping it will lead them to the rest of the body.

Crazy tales from TV and radio!

An interviewer asked Marilyn Monroe if she had really posed for photographs with nothing on.

"Oh, goodness no," the sex goddess replied. "I had the radio on."

That's just one of the funny, fascinating stories uncovered by author Peter Hay and reported in his book Canned Laughter: The Best Stories From Radio and Television. Here are more:

Zsa Zsa Gabor once moderated a television panel dealing with marital problems. The first guest said, "I'm breaking my engagement to a very rich man who has given me a beautiful house, a sable coat, diamonds, a new kitchen stove and a Rolls-Royce. Miss Gabor, what would you advise me to do?"

Zsa Zsa counseled: "Give back the stove."

The long running CBS hit Hogan's Heroes was first offered to NBC, and during the screening, hardened program executives were seen rolling in the aisle. But they decided to pass after somebody raised the question: "If the pilot is this good, how could they sustain it in the second week?"

The behavior on Laverne and Shirley is so different from what passes for normal outside the U.S. that the TV station in Bangkok, Thailand, showed it with a Siamese caption at the beginning of each episode: "The two women depicted in this series live in an insane asylum."

VIEWERS in Thailand were told Laverne and Shirley lived in an insane asylum.

When asked about the success of her series Charlie's Angels, Farrah Fawcett said: "When the show was No. 3, I thought it was our acting. When we got to be No. 1, I decided it could only be because none of us wears a bra."

Peter Falk's role in Columbo was originally offered to Bing Crosby. The singer turned it down, allegedly because it would have interfered with his golf.

Once Mr. Universe was lecturing Johnny Carson about the importance of physical fitness.

"Don't forget, Mr. Carson, that your body is the only home you will ever have."

In announcing the launch of CNN, Ted Turner said: "Barring satellite problems, we won't sign off until the world ends. We will cover the end of the world, live. And when the end of the world comes we'll play Nearer My God to Thee before we sign off."

NBC turned down Hogan's Heroes because the pilot was too funny!

SEXY Farrah Fawcett thought her TV show Charlie's Angels was popular because of good acting.

A man who had just turned 100 was being interviewed by a local TV reporter. "How do you feel when you get up in the morning?" the reporter asked. The oldster eyed him with amusement and replied: "Amazed!"

NUN USES BLACK MAGIC TO HEAL DYING PATIENTS!

MIRACLE WORKER: Sister Maria Angelica has cured people with cancer, heart disease and dozens of other ailments.

By SANDRA LEE / Correspondent

VENICE, Italy — An 86-year-old nun is being hailed as a miracle worker for her amazing ability to save the lives of terminally ill patients — and she admits she owes her success to the black magic she learned from an African witch doctor!

She dazzles doctors with secrets she learned from African medicine man

Sister Maria Angelica says the secrets she acquired in the jungles of Tanzania two years ago have enabled her to cure hundreds of people suffering from cancer, heart disease, liver and kidney ailments and dozens of other diseases.

"I met an elderly tribal witch doctor, a shaman, who taught me fascinating techniques that doctors of modern medicine would never consider," she said.

"Some of his ideas are definitely a bit out of the ordinary — but as long as I am saving lives, that is obviously all that is important here."

The sister acquired her healing powers when she visited a tiny tribe of savages in the heart of the Tanzanian jungle as a missionary in 1993. There she was taught the elements of black magic by a witch doctor called Ku Uru, who presented her with a large supply of herbs, extracts and medicinal concoctions he used to heal the natives.

"Modern medical science has very little knowledge or understanding of the medicines he gave me," she said.

"The secrets to most of them have been handed down from father to son for hundreds of years and never shared with anyone in the outside world. To find that they succeed where modern medicine fails surprises me as much as anyone else."

As word of Sister Maria Angelica's amazing deeds has spread across Europe, hundreds of the sick and dying have flocked to her convent in hopes of finding a cure — and nearly all have come away singing her praises.

"I was dying of stomach cancer and no one could save me until I visited the sister," said excited Salvatore Piacci, 53. "But after two visits, the doctors tell me my cancer has simply vanished. To me, it does not matter whether it was black magic or the healing hand of God. All that matters is that she made me well."

One cannot say he has lived unless he has helped another to do so.

EDGAR CAYCE PREDICTED:

FAMED clairvoyant Edgar Cayce.

WASHINGTON — The owner of a recently discovered Edgar Cayce diary has admitted he altered the psychic's private journal to eliminate its most devastating entry: A prediction that a deadly virus will destroy the world in the year 2000!

By LISA MERAKIS
Special correspondent

The change was discovered by Cayce expert David Martinique, author of the new book Edgar Cayce And The End Times — Prophecies For 1995 And Beyond.

Martinique says the lost prediction foretells the spread of a deadly virus much like the fatal disease in the horrifying movie Outbreak.

"My source told me he just didn't want humanity to lose hope," said Martinique, who has not revealed the identity of the diary's keeper. "Cayce is just so accurate. The man was afraid the prophecy would cause a panic."

The terrifying prediction was contained in the final portion of a small leather-bound journal kept by the famed clairvoyant in the months before his death in 1945.

According to information gathered by Weekly World News for a story that appeared last December 13, the psychic left the diary to his friend and asked him to keep it secret until Oct. 30, 1994. At that time, he was to release its contents to the world.

The man in possession of the diary did not open it until that date. When he did, he was apparently overwhelmed by Cayce's vision of a catastrophic viral outbreak and removed that portion of the journal before releasing the document to Martinique.

"The gentleman removed the three pages on which Cayce had written his prediction about the virus, but he saved them," Martinique said.

"When I realized several pages had been cut out, I confronted him — and he admitted what he'd done.

"The pages contain a startling vision of the end of the world, complete with minute details about the effects the virus will have on mankind.

"Cayce envisioned a virus similar

The 'lost' Edgar Cayce prediction paints a horrifying picture of the last days of mankind!

The "lost" Edgar Cayce prediction paints a horrifying picture of the last days of mankind, giving details of the rain forest virus that will spread like wildfire through the human population.

Cayce predicts the Ebola-type illness will first infect humanity in the year 2000 when a diseased monkey bites his handler at a research facility in Germany.

Here is Cayce's lurid description of the events that follow:

The new virus acts so quickly that the research handler dies within 48 hours — but during that time, he spreads the disease to co-workers, friends, family and medical workers.

In a matter of days, residents of Berlin, Hannover, Bremen and Copenhagen come down with the disease.

From there it spreads around the world, invading every major population group within just four weeks.

The deadly virus — which is communicated like the common cold — kills nearly 100 percent of its victims.

The hideous illness begins with a raging fever, a painful cough and teary, burning eyes.

Within hours, victims start to swell up as fluids collect in body tissues and organs. Diarrhea and vomiting become almost constant.

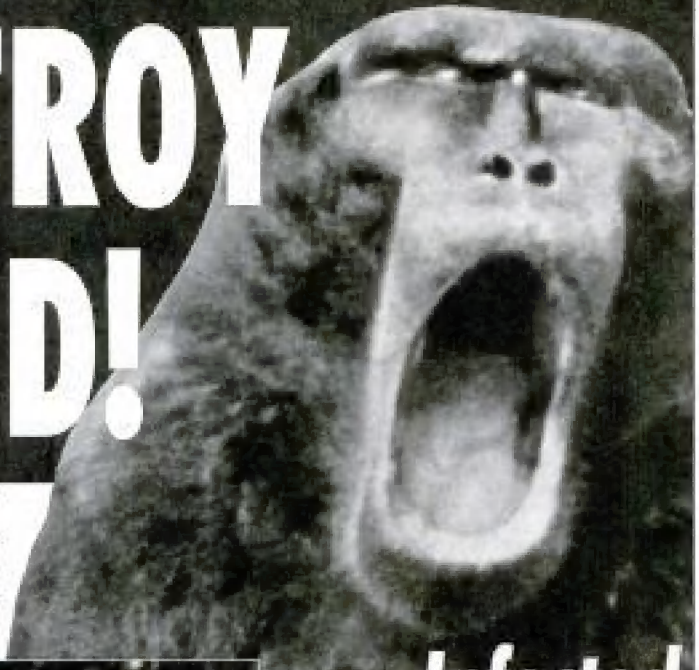
The face becomes flushed, then darkens to a grotesque purple or black as the disease progresses.

Death comes when the lungs fill with fluids and the victims literally drown in their own body liquids. Deterioration of victims' bodies is so advanced by the time they die that during autopsies internal organs are found to be rotting.

The famous psychic says the virus "will end all civilization," killing billions of people.

"The sun will set on the species," he says.

RAIN FOREST VIRUS WILL DESTROY THE WORLD!



to the Ebola virus featured in the movie Outbreak.

"He says it will be spread by a cough or a sneeze — and it will be 99.9 percent fatal."

While pockets of survivors will remain alive after the plague has swept the globe, Cayce believed the outbreak would virtually end mankind's reign on Earth.

"The diary says there will be a brief period of peace and harmony in 1999, just before the virus strikes in the year 2000," Martinique said. "After that, Cayce foresees the End Times, just as the Bible itself foretells it."

Infected monkey will trigger outbreak of disease that kills billions of humans!

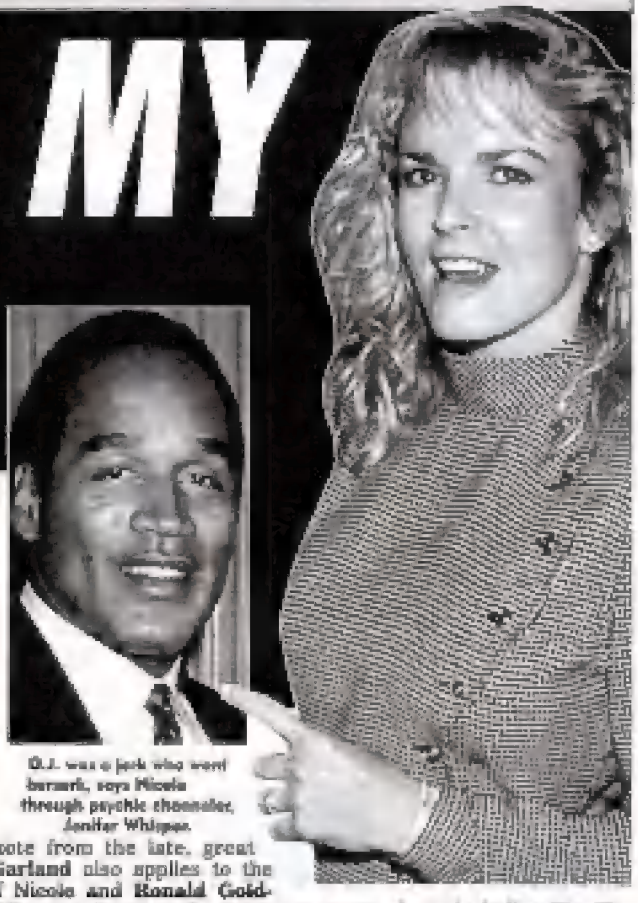
From beyond the grave Nicole Simpson reveals to psychic...

O.J. SLIT MY THROAT!



O.J. was a jerk who went berserk, says Nicole through psychic channeler, Jenifer Whisper.

A California psychic has channeled an incredible message from O.J. Simpson's ex-wife Nicole.

"At a Sunday night gathering we were all doing our usual thing," says Reverend Jenifer Whisper, "when all of a sudden, I felt Nicole's vibrations.

"Channeling through me, she surprised all of us with her most inspiring message."

Here are some startling excerpts from Nicole's bombshell from beyond the grave:

☞ O.J. is like a very lost angel spinning out of control, going through many emotional ups and downs.

☞ O.J. will be found guilty and little does he know that he is being used as an instrument on planet Earth to serve, to heal, to show.

☞ O.J.'s temper made him a killer, a jerk who went berserk and now he will have to pay the consequences.

☞ Pray for O.J. that he finds it in his heart to say, "I did it!"

The Reverend Whisper says a direct quote from the late, great Judy Garland also applies to the lives of Nicole and Ronald Goldman: "Do not lament the dead, learn from us instead!"

Mark had reconstructive surgery. But his face was so altered that George Lucas used a plot device in Return of the Jedi to explain the change.

WORLD-FAMOUS PSYCHIC: Jenifer Whisper.

Mark was once again piloting spacecraft and performing feats of derring-do, only this time on computer screens. He appears on a best-selling CD-ROM adventure game called Wing Commander III.

The popularity of the interactive game has surprised him. "It's a phenomenon I didn't expect," he says.

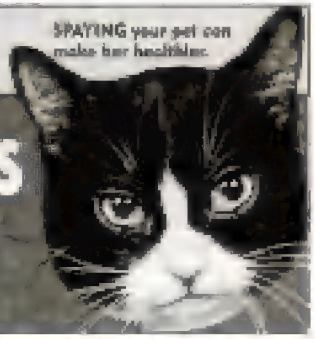
ASPCA special report...

4 little known reasons to sterilize your pet!



SPAYING your pet can make her healthier.

NEUTERING your dog will not make him lazy.

By BRITTANY CHAPMAN / Correspondent

Dogs and cats can live healthier lives, run less risk of getting hit by cars and will probably stop wetting the furniture if they're spayed or neutered, says the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA).

Here, according to the ASPCA, are some other medical and behavioral changes that will or won't occur when you sexually alter your pet:

● Neutering or spaying dogs and cats does not affect their personality or appearance. Contrary to popular belief, neutering or spaying will not make an animal fat and lazy — too much food and lack of exercise does that. And neutering a dog will not reduce his ability as a watchdog. He will be as protective of his territory as he ever was.

● Neutering male dogs reduces their habit of "mounting" people's legs.

● When you neuter a male dog or cat, it makes that animal less likely to roam, get hit by cars, get into fights or urinate in the house. Male cats have a very strong, disagreeable smell to their urine and often spray on objects in the house. Neutering often eliminates the smell and the urge to spray.

● Neutering and spaying can help your pet live a healthier and longer life. Older male dogs and cats often suffer diseases of the prostate and testicular tumors. Neutered dogs rarely suffer from these disorders.

Unspayed female dogs and cats often develop uterus infections and mammary tumors when they grow older. Spayed animals rarely do.

Unspayed dogs and cats live, on the average, two to three years less than those animals who've been altered.

Male dogs can be neutered as young as 7 months of age. Female dogs should be spayed after their first heat, at 9 months, and before their second heat at 15 months.

Male cats should be neutered after sexual maturity, which occurs at about 7 to 9 months. Female cats should be spayed after their first heat, at about 6 to 9 months of age.

Greedy dealers sell confused oldster 10 pickups & 5 new vans — in 14 months!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

MADISON, Wis. — An old man was so confused he bought 10 new pickup trucks and five new minivans in 14 months — and greedy car dealers were more than happy to take his money.

Mixed-up oldster Russell Neesam, 70, didn't drive any of the vehicles longer than two months before trading for new ones.

In one screwball deal, Neesam bought a new Dodge Dakota truck, drove it 626 miles in six days and traded it in on another new Dodge Dakota truck.

OLDSTER Russell Neesam loved to buy pickup trucks.

"You would have thought the dealers or their salesmen would have asked Mr. Neesam a few obvious questions, but I guess the need to make a sale outweighed any moral obligation," said attorney Mitchell Hagopian.

Hagopian works for the Coalition of Wisconsin Aging Groups and has filed a lawsuit in Neesam's behalf against Don Miller Dodge Inc. of Madison. The suit claims a salesman for the Dodge dealer sold Neesam two pickup trucks and five minivans between September 1992 and November 1993. Miller's attorney, Wayne Wilson, said there was nothing to indicate Neesam had mental problems.

"He liked trucks and was a man who shopped around before he bought," Wilson said. "He knew prices and negotiated deals with different dealers. Was the dealer supposed to say, 'Sorry, I can't sell you one'?"

Hagopian filed a suit in July against another auto dealer in Beaver Dam, who sold Neesam six new trucks. Two other dealers each sold the old codger one new truck.

"Before Mr. Neesam's mind began to fail, he owned a new truck free and clear," Hagopian said. "Now he owes a finance company $16,000 for his present truck."

During his transactions at Don Miller Dodge, Neesam lost $22,108 in down payments and $13,189 in equity in trade-ins, the suit claims.

The nightmare ended when concerned neighbors asked a social worker to check on Neesam. She notified Neesam's daughters after questioning the old man.

Neesam has since been declared mentally incompetent.

He is in the care of his daughters, who have been declared his legal guardians.

SALESMAN POLL!

☐ The greedy dealers took advantage of the old man by selling him so many trucks and/or vans in such a short period of time.

☐ The dealers are in the business of selling cars, trucks and vans. They did nothing wrong.

Boss's cruel wisecrack wins employee $400G

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Fed-up James Breiner took a lot of on-the-job abuse before he decided he'd had enough — and hauled his wisecracking boss to court for calling him an "old fart."

A jury agreed the insult violated Breiner's rights and awarded him $400,000.

Testimony in the human rights lawsuit revealed Breiner, 58, who worked for DAKA International as a [illegible], [illegible] in the National Museum of Natural History's cafeteria in Washington, D.C., was subjected to a barrage of insults.

These remarks included the following:

"Check out Jim's gray hair; he's old like my father."

"How you doing, old man?"

and "Here comes the old man, get out the wheelchair."

Breiner had retired after 30 years in the Marriott Hotel's food services division and gone to work for DAKA at the National Museum of Natural History's cafeteria in Washington, D.C.

Breiner said other employees at the National Museum of American History within six to eight months.

"That's when the badgering from his 30-year-old boss started," said Breiner's lawyer, Gary T. Brown. "And my client was only 54 and 55 at the time, hardly an old man in today's society."

Brown said other em-

MY AMERICA MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

Lotteries are scams for lazy folks!

I'm madder than a surgeon with a leak in his yacht over all these states ripping folks off with stupid lottery scams!

My lazy brother-in-law who lives in Florida called me several weeks ago while I was fishing in New York to see if I wanted him to buy some tickets for me in the million-dollar lottery they were running down there.

And not only that, the no-account bum called me collect.

I slammed the phone down so hard I'll bet he couldn't hear for a week. Let's face it. Lotteries are mostly for fools like him who don't want to work for a living.

How would YOU like to tell your next-door neighbor that the only way you got a big house, fancy car and swimming pool was because some numbers were sucked up on Ping-Pong balls?

If someone sent me a winning lottery ticket for a million bucks, I'd tear the sucker up in a hundred little pieces, by jiminey. Hey, don't you think I'd like to go to Kmart with a blank check and refurnish my house?

Damn right.

And I'd love to have an 18-hole miniature golf course in my backyard, too.

But not if I had to humiliate myself by having my picture taken beside some oversized lottery check like they do to the winners.

I've never won anything in my life and I don't intend to start now.

So if my pinhead brother-in-law wants to waste money playing the lottery, great.

I make my money the old-fashioned way — I earn it.

'I make money the old-fashioned way — I earn it,' says Ed

☐ YES. I agree with Ed that lotteries are a rip-off and only lazy people play them.

☐ NO. People have every right to play the stupid lotteries and be as lazy as they want.

How to overcome any problem

GLOBAL NEWS SERVICE

The stresses of modern living can seem overwhelming sometimes — but you can take control of your problems and master them by developing a "survivor personality," say experts.

Here's how you can do it, according to Dr. Bernie Siegel and Dr. Alfred Coodley:

● Keep your childlike curiosity. Keep on learning about life, and makes you want to live and go on.

● Accept criticism with an open mind. Don't get angry. Weigh the criticism.

about the situation and what you can do about it. For example, if you live in an area that's frequently hit by tornados or hurricanes, don't just sit around worrying about it.

Instead, learn how you can protect your family, home and property.

on first-aid supplies and nonperishable foods, and by developing a plan of action if a disaster should strike.

● Learn to deal with your feelings. Express them, let them out, don't suppress how you feel. If you don't like the way you feel about a certain situa-tations for yourself. Don't drive yourself to attain impossible goals. Realize that just because you aren't the best, it doesn't mean you're a failure.

● Develop your sense of humor. Watch funny movies or TV shows, advised Dr. Siegel, author of Love, Medicine and Mir-

A KISS FOR THE BIG GUY: Rita Maynard shows Safe-T-Man her appreciation.

Carjacker foiled by dummy in auto's front seat!

By CRYSTAL MOREHEAD / Correspondent

DALLAS — A stupid carjacker shot up a Cadillac and got thrown into jail trying to roust the life-size "Safe-T-Man" dummy that sat in the front seat like a tar baby through the entire ordeal!

The dummy, which is designed to look like a 180-pound man, is sold as a crime deterrent — and in this case, cops agreed it worked like a charm.

"The thing started out like an ordinary carjacking but it quickly spun out of control," said one police officer familiar with the case.

"The car was parked outside a mall at night and the kid obviously considered it to be easy pickings. The windows are tinted and all you could see through them was the outline of the dummy.

"Witnesses said the kid tapped on the window with the butt of his gun, but for obvious reasons, the dummy didn't respond.

"The kid didn't like that, so he tapped again and yelled a little louder. Under normal circumstances, he would have GRATEFUL Rita proudly shows off the mannequin that saved her life.

would have given up and run away.

"But he lost his head and started shooting up the car to get the dummy's attention.

"By the time we got a patrol car out there, he had run out of bullets and was hidden lieved when we put him in handcuffs and made the arrest. It's a miracle that nobody was hurt."

Police charged the 14-year-old punk with attempted carjacking and weapons violations, and additional charges, including probation violation, are pending.

Cops refused to release the suspect's name because he is a minor.

The owner of the car, Rita Maynard, 42, said she purchased the "Safe-T-Man" dummy to discourage carjackers and other criminals who prey on women. She's also a big fan of Weekly World News — and had her "escort" decked out in a NEWS T-shirt and hat.

"My car has a few bullet holes in the door but it wasn't stolen and even more importantly, I wasn't hurt," she told the NEWS.

A spokesman for Safe-T-Man, Inc., the Santa Barbara, Calif., firm that manufactures and distributes the dummies, said: "Safe-T-Man has prevented countless crimes but to the best of my knowledge, this is the first time he's collared a crook."

I'm looking for a lady who will give me five babies!

Confidentials

Dear Sex-starved in Chicago: I like my lovin', too — but making time with the Rotary Club is ridiculous!

Dear Wondering in Adams: If I found condoms and edible undies in the glove compartment of my man's car, I'd kick his stupid teeth out!

Dear Love-struck in Baldwin: The best way to let a woman know you're interested in her is to pick up the phone — and say so!

Dear Worried in Riverview: At the age of 32, this so-called "baby" of yours is more than old enough to scratch on his own!

Dear Duped in Alden: You should have thought about that before you got naked and climbed into a giant birthday cake!

Dear Slave in Millburn: If you really want to make more than minimum wage, go back to school — and get your master's degree!

Dear Aspiring Actress in Delmar: You and every other 14-year-old girl in the country. Get real!

Dear Dotti: When I was a kid in college I vowed to make my first million dollars by the age of 30 and my second million by the age of 35. I reached both goals with some rather shrewd investments, and now that I have all the money I need, I'm ready to settle down and have the family I never had time to build.

I'm rather shy around women, so I'm really not in the market for a bride. All I really want are a bunch of kids — five to be exact. Can you help me find a lady who will have them for me without expecting marriage? I'll pay the right woman very well to provide this service for me. — Anxious in Miami

Dear Anxious: Who the hell do you think I am — America's Most Outspoken Matchmaker? Get with the program, rich boy. If you want a slut to have your children, run an ad in your local newspaper!

I caught my boyfriend in the backseat with my mom!

Dear Dotti: I caught my boyfriend of two years kissing my mom in the backseat of his car. He swears he was just being nice to her because she had just broken up with her boyfriend and was feeling blue. I still love him but I can't help but think he was cheating on me. What do you think, Dotti? Even more importantly, what should I do? — Undecided in Euclid

Dear Undecided: I don't think your boyfriend was cheating on you, I KNOW he was cheating on you. And if you have half a brain — which I doubt — you'll drop him like a hot potato!

My good buddy turned out to be a woman in disguise!

Dear Dotti: I work in a mail room and have become good friends with the guys who work there. We hunt, fish and do "guy" things together. Things changed about a week ago, however, when we went to a gym to play basketball. After the game, we were getting ready to shower when Terry got very nervous — and darted into the LADIES' locker room. When confronted, "he" told us "he" was really a woman — and pulled down his pants to prove it. I'm absolutely beside myself, Dotti. Have you ever heard of anything like this? — Worried in Baltimore

Dear Worried: This might seem like an isolated incident but it's amazingly commonplace. According to government research, two of 10 Americans dress, act and live secret lives as the opposite sex. Terry, quite obviously, belongs to this group. And you belong to a much larger group of Americans who trust people to be who they pretend to be — and are duped!

You're a spiteful old witch compared to Serena Sabak!

Dear Dotti: I've been reading your column for several years now and have finally reached the conclusion that you're a spiteful old witch. I think you should be more like your psychic colleague, Serena Sabak. She's not only sweet, she gives good answers that help people. — Concerned in Florida

Dear Concerned: I'd like to be more like Serena Sabak but let's face it, I've got a genius I.Q. — and she doesn't!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, P.O. Box 002547, Dallas, Texas 75380.

Ask Serena

Did I know my husband in a former life?

Dear Serena: My new husband and I fell in love at first sight on a blind date and got married six weeks later. We're so much in love and so compatible that we believe we may have known each other in a previous life. Did we, Serena? If so, when did we live? — Curious in Trenton

Dear Curious: You and your husband lived together as brother and sister in ancient Greece, Rome and Egypt.

Read all the history books you can, and meditate together daily for more insight into your past.

POSSIBLY play. Sometimes they'll win, sometimes they won't. Remember that most people will never win the lottery regardless of their numbers.

Dear Serena: I'm in a real bind and you're the only person on Earth who can help. I've got a big test coming up at school and as you probably know, I've been goofing off and I'm not prepared.

Can you cast a spell or something to help me pass? I promise I'll study hard in the help you with a wave of my hand, but I'm not going to. Let's just hope the failing grade you get teaches you a lesson!

DEAD GIRL'S ORGANS SAVE 8 PEOPLE!

Philadelphia 9-year-old is the world's greatest transplant donor!

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — When Jessica Blenzmein, 9, died under the wheels of a car last fall, her family turned the terrible tragedy into triumph — by using her organs to bring new lives to eight lucky strangers!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

The little girl's body provided two corneas, lungs, a heart, a liver, two kidneys, and a pancreas to ailing folks all over the world. Last week the organ recipients met for the first time at a private memorial service celebrating the life of little Jessica and the generosity of her family.

"She's the world's greatest transplant donor," said grateful Delia McManaahay, 18, who can see perfectly now thanks to a cornea from the little girl. "No one has given more organs in successful transplants.

"Because of her, we're all living like normal people again. She gave us our lives back."

Jessica was riding her bicycle last September when she lost her balance and fell into the path of a speeding car. The child suffered severe head injuries and was declared brain dead by a team of doctors.

When her parents, Andrew and Bonnie Blenzmein, realized their only child would not survive they were devastated. They spent three days of hell trying to decide whether to remove the little girl from the hospital's life-support system. It was only when they realized that they could give life to others with their little girl's organs that they gave doctors the go-ahead and found a measure of peace.

"The doctors told us there were thousands of people waiting years and years for transplants," Bonnie recalls. "They told us these people were dying — and our Jessica could save them.

"We realized that if we could help any other family avoid the terrible loss we had suffered that we should do it."

With their courageous decision, the Blenzmeins changed the lives of the following people:

● Erika Mannesson, 11: This Swedish teenager got a new pancreas from Jessica. Today she is no longer an insulin-dependent diabetic, and no longer faces blindness, limb amputation and an early death. "I pray for Jessica every day and give thanks," the girl says.

● Delia McManaahay, 14: She's no longer blind, thanks to a corneal transplant. For the first time since she was a toddler, she can see the loving faces of her parents and brothers and sisters. "I'm going to go to college and pursue a career in medicine," says the Augusta, Maine, high school student.

● Antonio Bianco, 24: A liver transplant recipient from Rome, Italy, this young man got a second lease on life from little Jessica. Today he's back at business school and engaged to be married. "I was going to die without a new liver," he says. "Now my doctors tell me I can get married, have children and live a long life."

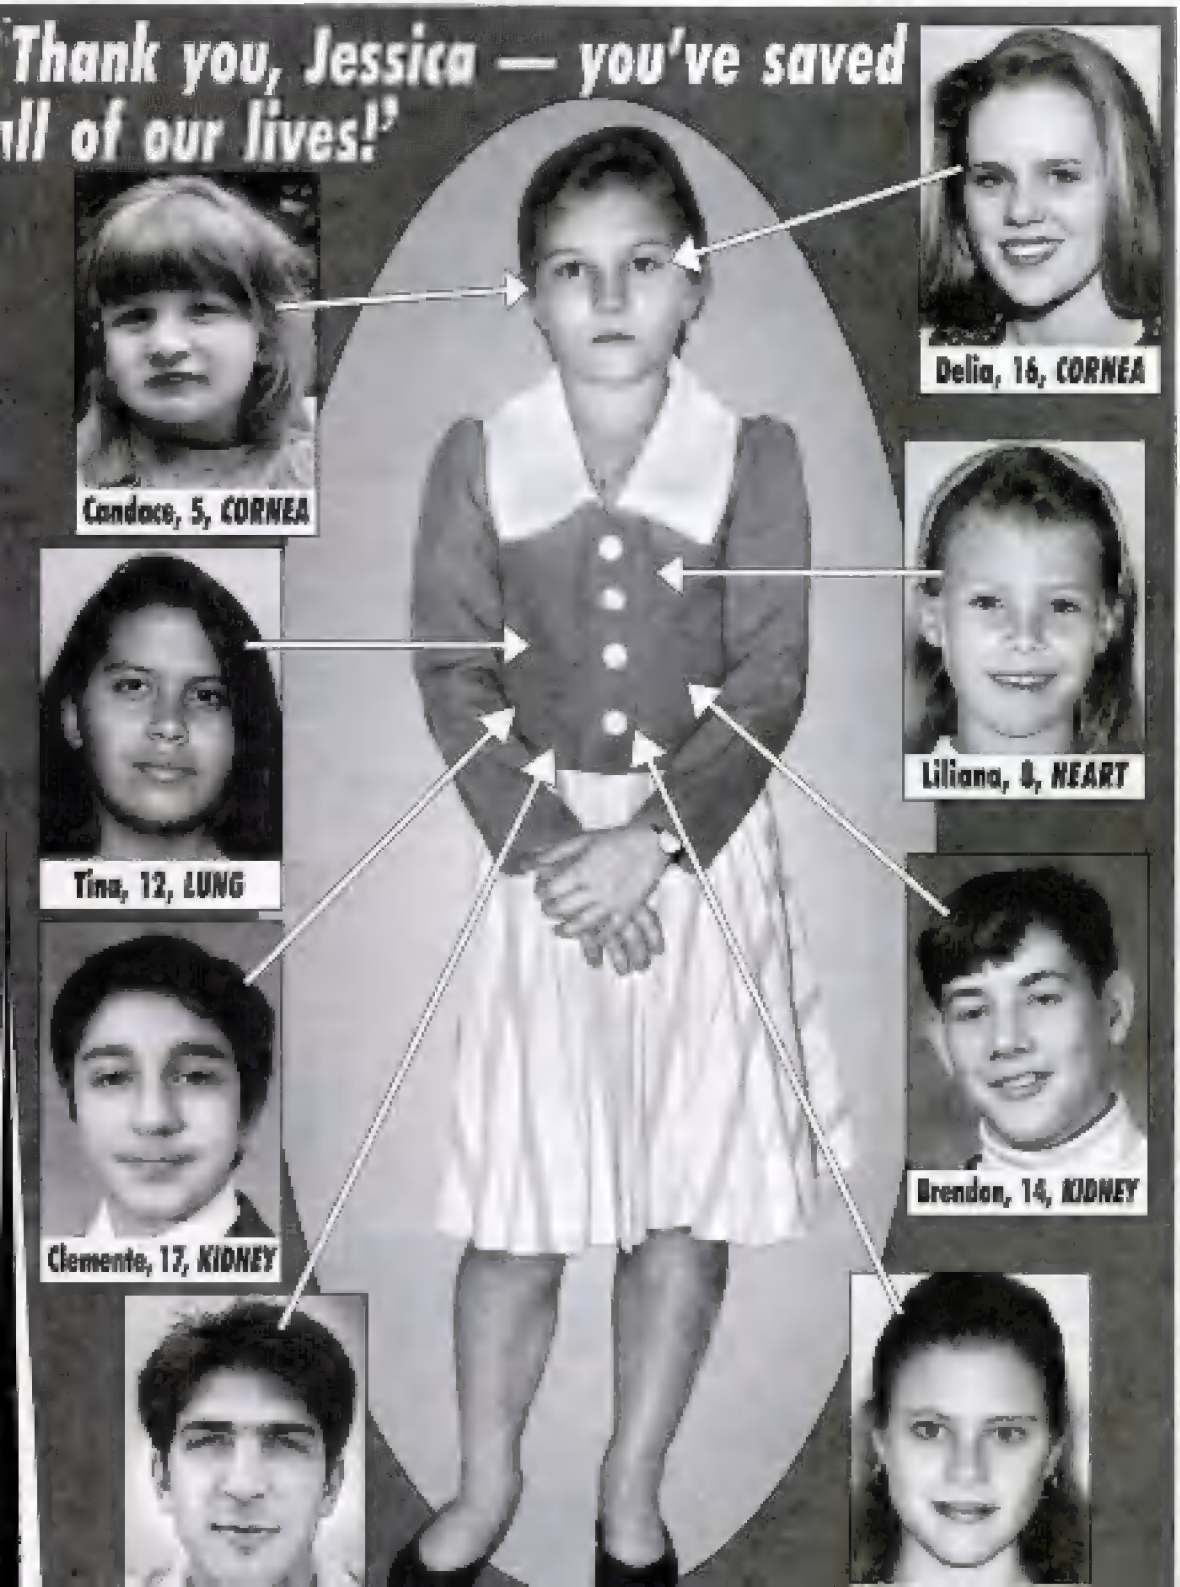
● Brendon Flint, 14: This Liverpool, England, boy got a kidney from Jessica, freeing him forever from dialysis and chronic illness. "I'm sorry Jessica died," he says, "but part of her will live on in me."

● Liliana Tremeaux, 8: She got Jessica's heart and has since gained 20 pounds and gone to school for the first time in her life. "Jessica is like my best friend," the little French girl says of the organ donor. "I wish I could tell her how much she helped me."

● Candace Kerrigan, 5: The lucky Chicago child saw for the first time after she got a corneal transplant from Jessica. The little girl is already become a talented artist, with dreams of becoming a book illustrator when she grows up. "I'm using Jessica's eye to see with," she says. "It makes me very happy."

● Clemente Bautero, 17: With Jessica's other kidney, this brilliant young math student has gone from sickly, homebound invalid to an energetic teen. "Last month I won a scholarship to college," the Barcelona, Spain, teen says. "I want to make success of my life to show my gratitude to Jessica and her family."

● Tina Varjani, 13: A lifelong asthma sufferer, she got a lung transplant from Jessica and is now leading a normal life for the first time. "If people knew how important organ transplants can be, everyone would donate their organs," says the New York girl. "To me, Jessica is a little angel."



Postal clerk gives robber trash-for-cash

MAINZ, Germany — A clever postal clerk coolly foiled an armed robbery — and even got the bandit to take out the trash for him!

The mail clerk outsmarted the gun-toting hood by taking his plastic getaway bag and filling it with trash instead of cash.

"This postal worker was cool, brave and intelligent," said a police spokesman. "He stooped down behind the counter and filled the man's bag with the contents of his wastebasket.

"Then he handed it to the robber, who ran out the door."

COPS ARREST COUCH-POTATO FLASHER!

BRISTOL TOWNSHIP, Pa. — Freezing weather didn't stop a flasher who was too lazy to go out in the cold. The guy simply stripped to his birthday suit and paraded back and forth in front of a picture window inside his mother's house.

"He'd rap on the window to get the attention of passersby," a cop said.

Police said college student Brian Robbins, 30, exposed himself to two women and one man. He was charged with indecent exposure.

Hillbilly remedies!

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. — Mountain folks around here have their own way of dealing with a hangover. They simply mix up a mess of scrambled owl eggs and eat 'em.

Miracle after miracle after miracle . . .

Angels are real — & they're saving people every day!

. . . says expert

ELECTRIFYING photo of this angel first appeared in the Sept. 25, 1990 issue of Weekly World News.

Angels are real and they move among us — guiding and protecting our lives, declares a respected journalist and teacher.

Sophy Burnham, author of A Book of Angels and Angel Letters, has detailed hundreds of fascinating real-life encounters that people have had with these heavenly beings.

She says she herself was saved from falling off a cliff by an angel on skis!

Here are a few of the amazing cases documented in her books:

● Eight-year-old Marilyn MacDonald was hit by a car and tossed high in the air while crossing the street on the way to school.

Her parents watched in horror as the little girl hit the pavement and rolled toward a large open sewer drain. But instead of falling in, she suddenly stopped — right at the edge.

Later, as the doctor was treating Marilyn's injuries, her parents told him she'd escaped certain death by stopping short of a sewer. "But she was rolling so fast, why didn't she fall in?" they asked out loud.

Then, Marilyn spoke up: "But didn't you see the beautiful angel standing in the sewer, holding up her hands to keep me from falling in?"

● William Lindemann of Takoma, Conn., was walking on a frozen lake when a blinding snowstorm suddenly engulfed him.

Out on the ice, miles from safety, he was reduced to crawling on his hands and knees toward shore.

"Please, dear God help me," he prayed.

Then he heard the blast of a marine research station foghorn and a voice warning him to stay to the right to avoid a break in the ice. Finally he reached the station . . . and was saved. A bearded man brought him inside and gave him a warming cup of coffee.

When the storm ended, Lindemann went back to thank the man and saw a "closed for the winter" sign on the station door. He checked and was told the station had been closed for some time and no one had been working there.

The rescued man could find no other explanation — the bearded stranger must have been an angel!

● In one of the most remarkable cases ever reported, author Sophy Burnham was pulled from the brink of death by a skiing angel.

While skiing down a slope in Val d'Isere, France, with her husband, Sophy fell and slid on her back toward the edge of a cliff.

Suddenly, a skier dressed in black hurtled from nowhere and skied in front of her. And with just yards to spare, he caught her and stopped her death slide.

Then the stranger skied up the slope and disappeared.

Declared Sophy: "It was an angel in human form — and he saved my life."

Forget drugs! Police dogs are sniffing for leaky car air conditioners

By BARRY KENNEDY
Correspondent

WASHINGTON — As if decent, law-abiding citizens didn't have enough to worry about, lawmakers have decided to give police departments far-reaching new powers to check for illegal Freon leaks in the air conditioners of automobiles.

And to accomplish the job, cops are training dogs to sniff out leaks in parking lots while the owners of the vehicles work or shop.

Freon, of course, is the refrigerant that cools air in all but the most modern air conditioners in the car and home.

The gas is strictly controlled by the Environmental Protection Agency because it damages the Earth's ozone layer, which protects us from the sun's deadly, cancer-causing rays.

Within the next few years it will be phased out entirely. Meanwhile, individuals who allow the gas to leak from air conditioners into the atmosphere are in violation of federal law.

Having so much as a pinhole leak in an air conditioner will result in fines as high as $10,000, law enforcement insiders warn.

"The threat of fines didn't carry much weight in the past — but these Freon-sniffing dogs will change all that," declared one source.

"It's estimated that four in seven auto air conditioners are leaking Freon into the atmosphere. Once you have dogs sniffing around parking lots, you're going to have four of seven automobile owners at risk of being found out — and heavily fined.

"I don't know about you, but I'd have to mortgage my house to pay a $10,000 fine. Even worse, there's no way to know if Freon is leaking from your air conditioner unless you're willing to shell out the money for an A/C test.

"Even then, your unit might be tight as a tick one day and leaky the next. If you don't check the system every day, you're definitely going to be at risk."

Dogs trained to sniff Freon under a federal program have been farmed out to police departments in several major cities, including New York, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Philadelphia. Specially trained canine officers are currently testing the dogs in parking lots around those cities. While tests go on, Freon-leaking vehicles will receive warning tickets.

By summer, however, mole-

By SERENA SABAK
PSYCHIC ASTROLOGER TO THE RICH AND FAMOUS

For the week of Mon., Apr. 3 – Sun., Apr. 9

ARIES
Mar. 21 – Apr. 19

All signs indicate that your luck is about to improve dramatically this week. Don't be afraid to take chances to get ahead now.

Your ability to lead could be an important factor during the weeks ahead when a friend looks to you for guidance with a sticky situation.

Simmering family disputes could quickly reach the boiling point at this time. Be cautious.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 – May 20

Be prepared to seize an opportunity that is likely to come your way in the week ahead. Seek advice from experts, but don't waste too much time or you'll miss the boat.

Your sense of loyalty could be tested in the near future when someone you trust tries to take advantage of your generosity.

All signs indicate that this is the time to tackle an important project.

GEMINI
May 21 – June 20

Allow close relationships a good deal of room in the week ahead and keep the door open for some exciting opportunities that appear headed your way.

These opportunities should make positive changes in your ho-hum life.

The days ahead should be a great deal more harmonious if you put a cap on your tendency to be both restless and moody.

CANCER
June 21 – July 22

Life should be happier and more creative this week if you are compassionate and creative.

Devote more energy toward making your home a more serene place for you to unwind in. You really do need a quiet retreat.

Try to make relationships softer, lighter this week. A revealing flash of insight promises to give birth to true peace of mind.

LEO
July 23 – Aug. 22

Wake up and smell the coffee. When your boss tells you to finish that project this week, he means it. Hop to it or you might regret it.

An older relative wants to give you job advice. Although well-intentioned, it's off the mark this time.

Romance will bloom unexpectedly. Your love life will have a surprising twist. Keep an open mind and buy some flowers.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 – Sept. 22

It is natural to be demanding of others as well as yourself. Perhaps a little patience in dealing with people and their problems is best this week.

An extraordinary string of new experiences may be waiting for you. Let your hair down a bit.

Someone much younger than you may offer advice this week that will change your life. Keep your eyes and ears open for unusual opportunities.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 – Oct. 22

All your hard work could begin to pay off this week, so this is no time to let up.

Keep your nose to the grindstone and don't break any rules — because someone important is watching you.

Begin planning for a big trip now or you might never get around to it. You're going to have a ball.

A dream with sunshine and gardens may have special significance.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

Watch your tongue this week. Someone in authority could drive you nuts with senseless demands and idiotic criticism, tempting you to give him a piece of your mind. But talking back might cause serious problems. Keep quiet now. Your turn will come.

An attractive member of the opposite sex secretly has eyes for you.

A gamble could pay big rewards. Don't be afraid to take a chance.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

Make plans this week. Anything you set out to do should come out well.

A friend wants to have a heart-to-heart talk with you, but feels too shy to ask for help. Make yourself available to those around you.

Working hard could lead to some health problems. Be sure to watch your diet and get some rest and relaxation. Learn to take it easy.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 – Jan. 19

A chance encounter could lead to good fortune for you this week, so keep your eyes open.

A period of achievement and contentment lies ahead.

The next few days could bring some social strain, but you can handle it by communicating your opinions frankly and tactfully. Use your skills with diplomacy.

Don't travel if you can avoid it.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 – Feb. 18

Be active this week. Get out and enjoy some vigorous exercise. If it's too cold to enjoy the outdoors, go to a local gym for a workout.

You may encounter some problems with pesky relatives, but they won't last long. Be patient. Someone you love dearly needs your smart advice. But don't loan him money.

It's time to start making long-range travel plans.

PISCES
Feb. 19 – Mar. 20

Take a look at your life this week. See where you've been and where you're going. Your priorities may be mixed up. It's time to set some goals.

Take a few hours to relax. Your body is trying to say that you need rest, but you haven't been listening.

Beware of people who take advantage of your gentle nature. But don't try to change your personality because of them.

AMERICA'S TOP 20

These bloodthirsty serial killers and mass

By SUSAN JIMISON / Staff writer

When it comes to mass murderers and serial killers, America holds the world title!

Throughout history American men and women have put other nationalities to shame, excelling at strangling, stabbing, shooting, poisoning, torturing, dismembering, and even eating hapless victims. They've racked up incredible scores as mass murderers and serial killers.

Here — ladies first — are twenty of our country's top killers and killing teams, and a brief description of their headline-making careers:

LESBIAN Aileen Wuornos murdered seven guys in cold blood after posing as a stranded motorist. She is in a Florida prison awaiting execution.

● AILEEN WUORNOS: In 1989 this two-bit hustler and lesbian went on a year-long killing spree and polished off a total of seven innocent guys. She'd pose as a stranded motorist and seduce them when they stopped to help her — then murder them in cold blood. She was convicted of murder in Florida and is still awaiting execution.

● MARYBETH TINNING: Known as "The Bad Mother," this Schenectady, N.Y., woman smothered her own babies one after another so she could enjoy sympathy and attention from friends. Authorities blamed the nine deaths on crib death or birth defects until one of Marybeth's relatives turned her in in 1985. She eventually confessed to killing three of the tots, but a doctor ruled that eight of her nine babies may have died of suffocation. Marybeth was sentenced to 20 years in prison for the murder of her ninth child.

● CHRISTOPHER WILDER: A handsome, debonair guy, Wilder dated only the best of broads — and killed them with enthusiasm. He was a wealthy Palm Beacher who used his sophisticated charm and faise credentials as a fashion photographer to attract his victims. He'd get them alone, tie them up, torture and rape them, then strangle or stab them. All told, he did away with at least eight women in the early 1980s, triggering a massive FBI manhunt. He was finally caught in New Hampshire by state troopers and was shot to death during a violent struggle with a cop over his .357 magnum.

● CHARLES WHITMAN: This guy took many innocent people with him when he died in the infamous 1966 Texas Tower rampage. The college engineering student climbed to the top of the observation tower at the University of Texas and blasted away with a rifle. By the time cops shot him dead, he'd killed 18 people and wounded 30 others. Tragically, Whitman left a note asking authorities to perform an autopsy because he suspected something was wrong with his brain. Sure enough, doctors found a two-inch-wide tumor pressing on the aggression center of his brain.

● RICHARD RAMIREZ: Known as the "Night Stalker," Ramirez snuffed at least 13 innocent victims over a six-month period in 1985 as they slept in their beds, sneaking into their homes and assaulting and shooting them. After he was arrested, he bragged that he had killed more than killer dressed in black and fascinated the public with his defiance. Initially refusing a defense attorney and shouting "Hail Satan" to reporters and spectators at his trial. He was said to believe that Satan would protect him from harm, but he got the death penalty anyway.

● HENRY LEE LUCAS and OTTIS TOOLE: This terrifying team were already killers when they joined forces in 1976. In the next six years they slaughtered as many as 100 people around the country, choosing their victims indiscriminately and often mutilating or raping their corpses. The two homosexual lovers were even known to chow down on a particularly delectable victim now and then. The pair wound up convicted of murder and both received the death penalty. They're awaiting execution.

● ED KEMPER: What he lacked

● BELLE GUNNESS: When it came to the gents, this chubby 19th century gal knocked 'em dead. Literally. She'd advertise in the classifieds and convince wealthy Chicago bachelors that they'd found the woman of their dreams. When they packed their bags and traveled to her country home to meet her, they met their deaths. Beastly Belle butchered 14 men, an unidentified female and three of her own children before she disappeared. Police say she got away with at least $30,000 that she'd stolen from her slaughtered swains.

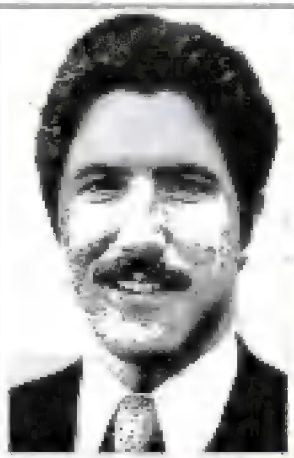
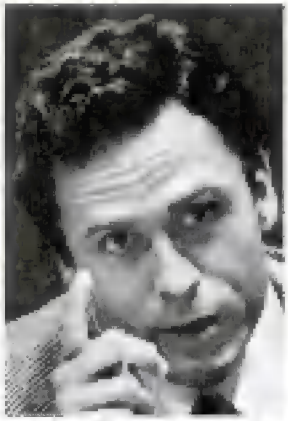
MASS MURDERER Henry Lee Lucas mutilated and raped his victims' corpses.

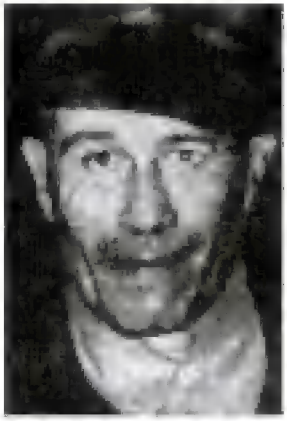
COLLEGE STUDENT Charles Whitman gunned down 16 from an observation tower.



HILLSIDE STRANGLER Kenneth Bianchi terrorized Los Angeles in the 1970s.



SERIAL KILLER Ted Bundy kidnapped and murdered at least 20 pretty coeds.



GHOULISH Ed Gein drank from a bowl made from the skull of one of his victims.

DAPPER H.H. Holmes tortured and gassed more than 200 women in the 1890s.

MILWAUKEE CANNIBAL Jeffrey Dahmer took Polaroids of his tragic victims and boiled their skulls as keepsakes.

MORE KILLERS ON NEXT PAGE

In numbers, this killer made up for in nastiness, mutilating and dismembering pretty coeds and keeping their body parts around as reminders of his crimes. He got his start at killing as a youth by blowing away his grandma and grandpa with a .22 rifle. In the 1970s he cruised the roadways of northern California, capturing and killing young female college students and having sex with their cadavers. He ate strips of one victim's legs in a macaroni casserole, chilled other victims' heads in his refrigerator, and saved skin and teeth as precious mementos. He finally turned on his own mom, whose head he deftly removed with an enormous hunting knife. He then invited her best friend over and strangled her for good measure. Kemper confessed to a total of 10 murders and begged for the death penalty. Instead he was given a life sentence — and he's now eligible for parole!

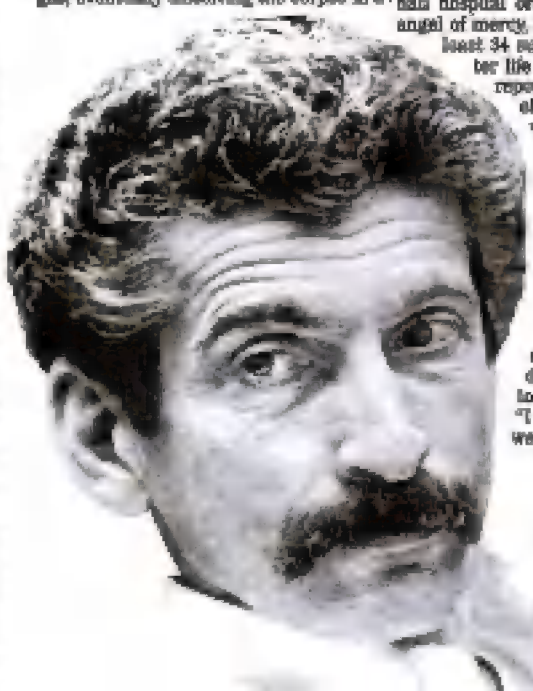
● PATRICK KEARNEY: This guy made gay life grim in California and Mexico by putting an end to at least 28 young males from 1968 to 1977. He met most of his victims in gay hangouts and shot them to death — then chopped them into itty bitty chunks and disposed of them neatly in plastic trash bags. Kearney and his gay lover were both arrested after someone tipped off authorities, but only Kearney was eventually convicted. Kearney, who said killing "excited me and gave me a feeling of dominance," told cops he'd killed more than 40 people, but confessed to 28 specific murders. He was sent to the slammer.

● H.H. HOLMES: The United States Grand Champion killer, this guy was a dapper-looking dude with a handlebar mustache who tortured and gassed more than 200 lady admirers. The owner of a hotel in Chicago, Holmes met his victims when they visited the city during the 1893 World's Fair, inviting them back to his 100-room hotel. Unbeknownst to the ladies, Holmes' hotel was a warren of secret passages, trapdoors, fake walls and hidden entrances. The killer would propose marriage to each victim, fix her up with a room at his establishment and get her to sign over her life savings to him. After a night of love, he'd chloroform his sweetie and toss her into an elevator shaft. When she woke up, he'd watch with pleasure as she struggled, then dose her with a deadly gas, eventually dissolving the corpse in a vat of acid. He finally aroused official suspicion and absconded, but when his hotel later burned police found over 200 bodies amid the ruins. Holmes was arrested in Philadelphia in 1896, convicted of murder and hanged.

● DONALD HARVEY: This Cincinnati hospital orderly saw himself as an angel of mercy, and claimed he'd sent at least 34 suffering folks on to a better life in Heaven. He told a TV reporter that he'd suffocated elderly patients in his care with pillows, or turned off their oxygen supplies, or stopped their breathing with plastic bags. Others, he said, he did away with using poisons — and then watched over them for hours as they lay in the morgue.

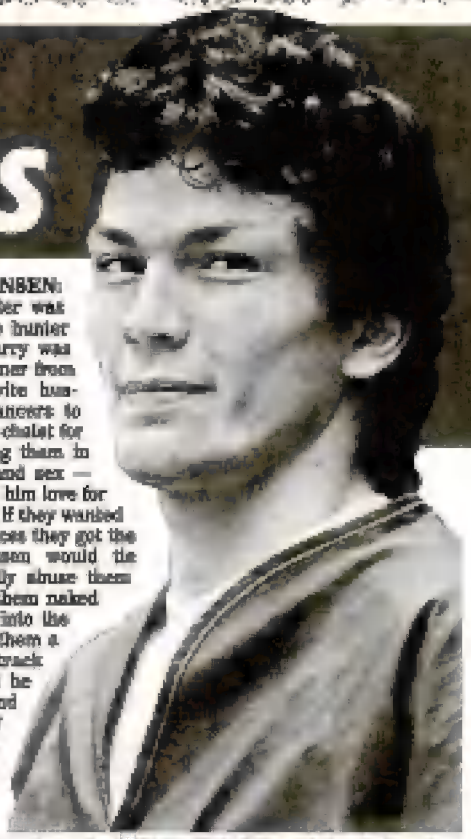
He was arrested in 1987 but unfortunately cops had no solid evidence, so Harvey was able to avoid the death penalty. "I felt that what I was doing was right," Harvey said.



MURDERER Angelo Buono teamed up with his cousin Kenneth Bianchi to torture and kill 10 to 15 prostitutes.

Big game hunter's prized prey: Topless dancers!

● ROBERT HANSEN: This coldhearted killer was an Alaskan big game hunter whose preferred quarry was women. A bakery owner from Anchorage, he'd invite hustlers and topless dancers to his remote mountain chalet for fun and games, flying them in by plane. He'd demand sex — and if the ladies gave him love for free all was well. But if they wanted money for their services they got the death penalty. Hansen would tie them up and sexually abuse them for days, then strip them naked and throw them out into the snow. After allowing them a head start, he'd track them like deer until he hunted them down and killed them. Police knew of 17 certain victims, but found a map on which Hansen had marked 31 sites believed to be places where he'd killed his frightened victims. He was sentenced to life in prison plus 461 years.



NIGHT STALKER Richard Ramirez sneaked into his victims' bedrooms and killed them as they slept.

● ED GEIN: This small-town farmer was officially accused of two murders, but cops found the remains of at least 15 women in his home. The shocking thing was the condition they were in. Investigating the murder of a shopkeeper, police entered Gein's house to discover it littered with human body parts: A heart in a pan on the stove, a vest made from a woman's torso, stockings made from human skin, a bowl made from a human skull, and the heads of ten women. Gein confessed he killed during the full moon, dancing around dressed in his ghastly skin costume. Sickened neighbors recalled he had often brought them gifts of "fresh liver." He was found to be insane and died in 1984.

● JOHN WAYNE GACY: Dubbed The Killer Clown, Gacy was a model citizen who played clowns for hospitalized kids, won the "Man of the Year" award from Chicago's Junior Chamber of Commerce and once posed for a picture with First Lady Rosalynn Carter. He had a terrible dark side, though: In the 1970s and 1980s he tortured, raped and slaughtered 33 young men in a special torture room in his home, then buried their bodies in his basement. He was caught when police investigated the disappearance of a 15-year-old boy. He was convicted of murder and executed in 1994.

● ALBERT FISH: No more sinister killer ever walked the streets than Fish, a housepainter from New York with a taste for little kids. He ate them, boiled with veggies — but only after he had hacked and sawed them to death and reveled in their screams. The man preyed on children in the 1920s and was caught only because he wrote the mother of one of his victims and confessed to her what he'd done to her daughter. Police charged him with murdering, butchering and eating at least six little ones, but Fish claimed he'd had hundreds of victims. He was sentenced to death in the electric chair, a fate he joyfully embraced. "What a thrill that will be if I have to die in the electric chair," he said. "It will be the supreme thrill — the only one I haven't tried."

● JEFFREY DAHMER: "The Milwaukee Cannibal" had offed 17 hapless victims before bungling cops finally realized that the stench coming from his apartment was caused by rotting human flesh. The homosexual chocolate factory worker picked up young males and invited them to his home, where they died a few hours later at his hands. He then raped their corpses, took Polaroids of them and kept their boiled skulls as keepsakes. Dahmer's deadly pastime was finally discovered when a potential victim escaped, alerting police to his fiendish hobby. The man was arrested and convicted and sent to jail, where he was killed in a prison altercation.

● DEAN CORLL: A miserable fate awaited the young men who ran into this man. A homosexual who held glue-sniffing parties for young boys, he enjoyed handcuffing his victims to a board and torturing and sodomizing them. By the time one of his accomplices shot him to death and called the cops in August 1973, Corll had killed 27 youths and laid them "well to well" under the floor of his boathouse.

● TED BUNDY: The sexiest serial killer of them all, good-looking Ted Bundy used his charms to lure at least 30 — and probably many more — pretty young females to their deaths. He began his career of crime in Seattle in 1974 and kept up a steady slaughter until he was caught by cops in Utah in 1976. After a brief stint in jail he escaped to kill again and dozens more victims bit the dust. He liked to shyly ask for help from his intended prey, then kidnap, rape and beat them to death. He was recaptured by authorities in February 1978, and executed in January 1989.

● KENNETH BIANCHI AND ANGELO BUONO: Known as "The Hillside Stranglers," this deadly duo dispatched 10 to 13 prostitutes, first torturing and raping them, then snuffing them in ghastly ways. Afterwards, they ditched the bodies in the hills of Los Angeles, whence they got their nicknames. The pair terrorized L.A. during the late '70s but were finally arrested after Bianchi moved to Bellingham, Wash., and killed two women there. Bianchi got 27 years to life, and Buono got life without parole.

● RICHARD ANGELO: Mild-mannered and meek, this male nurse had a way with patients — an evil way. Police believe he killed as many as 25 people by injecting them with muscle paralyzer, then heroically trying to revive them so his co-workers could marvel at his skill. He was caught when one of his intended victims managed to flag down a nurse and survived Angelo's medical assistance. The bearded butcher was linked to four murders and given a sentence of 50 years.

NEW BOOK REVEALS . . .

Catholics have more fun in bed!

Catholics have more fun in bed, a fascinating new book reveals.

They have sex more often, enjoy more "sexual playfulness" — and even convince non-Catholic spouses to enjoy a more active lovelife, according to the Rev. Andrew Greeley, author of Sex: The Catholic Experience.

"Catholics see sex as a gift from God," Rev. Greeley writes. "It's meant to be enjoyed."

Among the fascinating facts revealed by his surveys of more than 4,000 people:

● 48 percent of Catholics report making love at least once a week. Only 36 percent of non-Catholics do.

● Catholic women score high when it comes to fun and games in the bedroom. 64 percent of them like undressing their spouse, showering with him or experimenting with techniques. Only 42 percent of non Catholic women scored as high.

● Protestants who marry Catholics have more sex than Protestants who marry other Protestants or Jews.

Man arrested for beating the stuffing out of a rooster!

MALAGA, Spain — A "fowl-tempered" man was dragged into court and charged with criminal mischief — for beating up a rooster!

Cops rushed to Enrique Galan's home after getting a call reporting that someody was knocking the stuffing out of a chicken. When they arrived, they found the rooster tied with a rope, standing in a pan of water. Galan, 25, was slapping the bird and spitting in its face, police said.

The rooster was turned over to an animal shelter and his tormentor was dragged into court. Galan testified he became enraged at the rooster because the bird woke him up on his day off — and a judge ducked and dismissed the School gets tough on bratty kids — by hanging them upside down!

STRICT PRINCIPAL Philip Maynard has come up with "the ultimate solution" to discipline problems in grades 1 through 8.

By MARLON BRANCH / Correspondent

GRAVITY BOOTS relieve pressure on the spine — and teach kids the importance of behaving in school.

Discipline in the classroom isn't much of a problem at the Kingston Day School in Cape Town, South Africa. Kids who misbehave are simply marched out to the playground and hung by their feet until they promise to be good!

Some educators and children's rights activists are up in arms over what school principal Philip Maynard has publicly called "the ultimate solution" to discipline problems in the classroom.

But as Maynard points out, Kingston kids work harder, have fewer distractions, learn more and are more respectful of teachers than students in "softer schools."

"Toe the line or hang the line — that's my motto," said Maynard. "Children understand a statement like that.

"And student behavior here at Kingston Day proves it."

Maynard got the idea for his playground "hang line" after seeing a report about gravity boots, which are reputed to promote physical well-being by allowing people to hang upside down, relieving pressure on the spine.

He purchased a single pair of the boots with his own money and placed them on the Kingston playground "as a warning to students who weren't serious about their education."

The first student to hang in the boots was a fifth-grader never to be disruptive again," said Maynard.

"I left him hanging another five minutes or so for good measure. And I must say that young man has been a model student ever since."

Maynard eventually added more boots to the hang line, giving him the option of punishing up to three kids at a time.

And while days or even weeks go by without any students needing discipline, occasional outbreaks of misbehavior can fill the line.

"It might seem barbaric," said Maynard. "But it really works."

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH CAN BE YOURS

"The discovery of a new natural prostate enzyme may turn into a major breakthrough in health and aging", declared a research chemist at the National Institute of Aging, a branch of the U.S. Government's National Institute of Health. "It's a most exciting finding and it certainly looks strongly as if this enzyme is going to play an important role in retarding aging and promoting a long life" he said.

The new enzyme has a double action. One, it can help people 'look' up to 30 years younger by smoothing out wrinkles and firming up skin. Two, it boosts the energy supply and slows down the aging process, so you can not just live a longer but also a healthier life. And to top it off, it's perfectly safe and has no side-effects, top doctors and scientists say.

According to a New York leading neurologist and nutrition specialist, "It can make people in their 40's look like they're in their 20's, while people in their 60's may look like they're 35 or 40."

An Atlanta physician and former director of physical health services for the Georgia Regional Hospital, reports that he has tested the enzyme on dozens of patients and "it worked miracles!"

A doctor of Osteopathy, founder of the International Academy of Preventive Medicine, said: "I have used it on over 1,000 patients. Within weeks people begin to feel healthier and stronger. Within one to three months the wrinkles and lines in their faces begin to disappear and they actually start looking younger. Their skin has a better color and their bodies become supplier and more youthful. It is very definitely an anti-aging substance that slows down degenerative diseases."

Scientists believe the enzyme is an ideal weapon against senility and recommend that everyone start taking the enzyme at an earlier age to prevent the future ravages of aging, and to benefit from the enzyme's successful arthritis properties.

An organic chemist and noted authority on nutrition probably best sums up what the new substance can do for you by saying: "It's a miracle compound. You can literally turn back the hands of time with this new discovery!"

The new enzyme is being marketed under the trade name REJUVENAL and can be ordered directly from the sole distributor: TRACOMIN, Dept. RW-4, Box F-42763, Freeport, Bahamas (apply 50¢ stamp on envelope). Enclose check or money order for 1-month supply: $19.98; 3-months: $52.83; 6-months: $99.72; 12-months: $179.64. TYCOON: 'I'll pay ANY religion $5,000,000 to get me into Heaven!'

BUSINESSMAN Frederick Spiedelmann wants a refund if he ends up in Hell.

TOPEKA, Kan. — Business tycoon Frederick C. Spiedelmann wants to go to Heaven when he dies — and he's willing to pay a fortune to guarantee he'll get there.

The multimillionaire says he'll hand over a whopping $5 million to any religious leader or religious group that will give him an ironclad contract ensuring he'll spend eternity in Paradise.

He doesn't care what religion is involved — he'll pay.

"To me, it's all the same," said Spiedelmann, 64, who retired after selling his petroleum exploration company last year.

"Muslim, Christian, Jewish — whatever. I just want to go to Heaven. I have no intention of wasting eternity in the grave or in the fiery torments of Hell.

"If any religious group can open up the Pearly Gates, that's the group I'm interested in.

"If any religion can promise beyond a shadow of a doubt that I'll make it beyond the shadow of the valley of death, that's the religion I'll follow."

The old man says he's in excellent health and expects to live for many more years.

But he wants to be prepared just in case. He has already written a will leaving handsome sums to his two children and his nephew.

And $5 million has been set aside in trust for the religious group or clergyman who'll sign a contract ensuring him a place in Heaven.

Spiedelmann is demanding a written guarantee and has asked his children to hold regular seances to check on the whereabouts of his spirit after he's dead to make sure the contract has been honored.

If he doesn't wind up in Heaven, he'll demand his money back — and another $1 million in damages, he says.

Spiedelmann says he's heard from a number of ministers and religious organizations who want him to convert to a particular faith. But so far, none has been able to guarantee heavenly bliss.

"They want to hedge," Spiedelmann says. "They want to promise me everything, but they don't want to put it down on paper.

"What I'm interested in is people who are so certain of their beliefs they'll guarantee an outcome.

"I want a minister who will stake everything on his faith.

"I want a minister who will put his money where his mouth is."

HOT DIGGITY DOG!

Owner rents out muscle-bound mutt to construction crews for $15 per hour

By SUSAN JIMISON / Staff writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — An ordinary-looking pooch named Bronson is making his mark in construction circles — as the world's top digger dog!

The muscle-bound mutt can dig a 20-foot-long, 2-foot-deep trench in less than three hours.

He's so good at excavating that his proud owner actually makes big bucks renting him out for roadwork, utility repairs and even stump removals.

"He used to be a real problem because he could dig his way out of anything," said Bronson's master, construction supervisor Billy Whelner. "I'd put him in the backyard and 10 minutes later he'd be running down the street."

Whelner says he got the mixed-breed pooch at the local pound when he was just a pup, hoping he would grow up to be a terrific watchdog. The puppy's ditch-digging skills showed up a few months later, the first time Whelner gave him the run of the yard.

"I went to get him an hour later and I couldn't believe what he'd done," the construction boss recalled. "My yard looked like it had been bombed. There were craters everywhere. It looked like a giant mole had gone berserk and hollowed everything out."

From that day on, Bronson became a dedicated digger dog. His desperate owner did everything he could to break him of his nasty habit, but nothing worked.

"I put him in the rec room and he actually dug out the carpet, splintered through the baseboard and burrowed right through the wall," Whelner said. "I built him a concrete pen and he dug out a corner of the concrete in two days flat.

"Finally, I realized I ought to market this dog. I figured I was sitting on a gold mine here."

Sure enough, when Whelner

The dog could dig trenches for gas lines, sewers and foundations in less time than a team of human workers. And all he wanted in return was a little water and some dog biscuits.

Word of his talent has spread throughout the city and Bronson now has his paws full keeping up with all the digging duties his owner lines up for him. And by the time he gets home, the pooch is so pooped he no longer digs around the house.

"I charge $15 an hour for his services and I'm making a nice little income on the side," Whelner said.

"My dog likes the work and I like the money. It's a great deal all around."

PASSION & MATRIMONY: People around the world are searching for the perfect mate and hoping for the perfect relationship.

Love &

A special 6-page

By SUSAN GORDEN / Correspondent

You can find Mr. or Miss Right by following some simple advice from a romance consultant.

"With the correct strategies, anyone can be successfully married in about two years," declared Suzanne Brierley, whose company Romanceworks conducts seminars for singles seeking love and marriage.

It takes two years to find your perfect mate!

Here are her tips:

- Make getting married a goal as important as your education or career. "If you wanted to be a doctor, you wouldn't expect to wake up one day and be a surgeon," she said. So take control of your personal life and decide what changes you can make to attract love and commitment.
- Compile a list of qualities you'd like in a mate. Figure out which ones are essential to your happiness and which are less important. Don't waste time with people who don't meet your needs.
- Line up dates through a variety of sources, including personal ads, singles clubs, friends and co-workers.
- Date only people who are looking for a relationship that could blossom into marriage. If it becomes clear that the person doesn't want to commit, start dating others.
- In the early stages of the relationship, don't pressure the other person by demanding commitment too soon.
- End a relationship with someone who won't date you exclusively after five months.
- If you want children, date only people who feel the same.
- Avoid people who become jealous of your friends.
- Beware of people who are continually unemployed, dissatisfied with their jobs or ask you for money.
- Stay away from people who constantly find fault in others. "Their behavior allows them to remain uncommitted," said Mrs. Brierley.
- Don't date anyone who is sexually promiscuous. "You can't afford to go to bed with someone until you've both agreed to stop seeing other people and you've been tested for AIDS," the expert said.
- Give yourself time to fall in love before you start a sexual relationship.
- Don't move in with someone you're dating if you want to be married. The other person may be less inclined to marry you when you're so easily available.

Marriage

guide to romance in the '90s

GLOBAL NEWS SERVICE

Many "facts" about love and marriage are really just old wives' tales, reveals psychiatrist Dr. William Appleton.

Here are some of the most common myths about love and marriage, and the truth behind them:

MYTHS and FACTS ABOUT LOVE & MARRIAGE

MYTH: Couples considering marriage should first test their compatibility by living together.

FACT: Even a good live-in relationship is no assurance the marriage will work, because marriage vows change the couple's psychological makeup. They're no longer "playing house," and some people feel trapped. Statistics show the divorce rate isn't any lower among couples who went through a "trial run."

MYTH: Honesty in love is always the best policy.

FACT: There are certain things partners should not tell each other. For example, you shouldn't tell your wife she's looking old. And the disclosure of certain secrets, such as an affair, can forever cripple your mate's ability to love you as much as before.

MYTH: Sharing common beliefs or a cultural heritage isn't important to a union's success.

FACT: Studies have shown that marriages are more apt to break up when there's an important difference between the partners such as race, religion or ethnic origin.

MYTH: Romantic love — and especially sexual passion — is essential to a relationship only in its early stages.

FACT: To keep the relationship alive and long-lasting, sustaining that early romantic spark is vital.

MYTH: Stroking a partner's low self-esteem with constant praise is far better than criticizing.

FACT: Undeserved praise can reinforce your mate's feelings of inadequacy, so make your criticism both positive and negative. For example, encouraging your partner's dieting efforts with kind words is better than saying that he or she looks great when it isn't true.

MYTH: True love means always giving in to your mate's wishes.

FACT: Some compromise is essential in a good relationship, but constantly giving in can lead to resentment and low self-esteem.

Watching soaps can add sparkle to your love life!

Watching soap operas can put a bubbly shine on your love life — whether you're single or married, an expert says.

"Listen to the lessons soaps teach," said communications specialist Dr. Mary Cassata.

"They can improve a good love life — or spruce up a dull one — by helping you learn how to meet someone and how to hold onto them."

According to Dr. Cassata, soap operas can teach you:

- That love isn't just for the young and the healthy. "There are lots of older women in love relationships on soaps," said Dr. Cassata, author of Life on Daytime Television.
- How to handle the opposite sex. "Soaps can teach you how to look and even what to talk about with the opposite sex," said Dr. Cassata.
- That being faithful pays off in soaps, characters who have adulterous affairs or break up other people's marriages end up suffering.
- To discuss your feelings. Soap characters talk about their angers. They don't hold things in — and you shouldn't, either.
- That divorce isn't the easy way out of marital problems. "Divorce on soap operas is always painful. Soap characters try to work things out whenever possible. If you see that divorce isn't an easy way out, you'll work harder at saving your own marriage."

Dr. Ruth Westheimer.

Dr. Ruth answers 6 most asked sex questions

By DON MORGAN / Correspondent

Men and women ask Dr. Ruth Westheimer literally thousands of questions about sex — but six queries pop up most often, the world's best-known sex therapist says.

Here are the six most commonly asked questions, and Dr. Ruth's answers:

Q What can I do when my partner says "I'm too tired?"

A Don't put off having sex until late at night. Make it a priority in your lives.

"Create settings for romantic occasions. Have a candlelit dinner. Dim the lights at home and watch a romantic movie on TV," advises Dr. Ruth.

"Go for a walk in the woods holding hands. Once you get sex off the back burner, you won't hear the complaint 'I'm too tired.' "

Q I fantasize about being with someone else when I'm making love with my partner, and I feel guilty about it. What should I do?

A Stop feeling guilty — such fantasies are normal.

But don't tell your partner because it could hurt them. Some things are better left unsaid.

Q My spouse flirts with my friends. What should I do?

A If it bothers you, you have to flatly tell your mate to cut it out because it creates too much strain when the two of you are out together.

A little bit of interest in the opposite sex is okay. But if your spouse openly flirts there may be a problem in your relationship and you have to talk about it.

Q I've discovered my spouse is having an affair, but I don't want to end our marriage. What should I do?

A Don't ignore the affair — insist on openly discussing the situation and stress that you want to keep the marriage intact.

Most of the time a spouse wants to end the affair but doesn't know how, so your mate will be pleased that you've provided a reason to call it quits.

Q We don't have as much sex as when we first met. Is that unusual?

A It's normal to feel less sexual urgency after two people have grown used to each other. But if you allow sex to dwindle away until it's almost nonexistent in your relationship, the two of you should talk about it and find out why.

Q How can we make our sex life more interesting?

A Use your brain. People who have a good sex life don't just let things happen by chance. They plan romantic interludes.

Don't take sex for granted. Talk it over with your partner.

Ask "What do you like? How can I please you?"

Experiment, and you'll be pleasantly surprised at how easy it is to make your sex life more interesting.

Add spice to your love life by jazzing up your bedroom!

By BEVERLY HAYES / Correspondent

You can spice up your sex life by paying attention to how you decorate your bedroom, says an expert.

"The way your bedroom looks, feels and even smells can have a large effect on getting — and keeping — you and your mate in the mood," says Tracy Cabot, author of the book How to Keep a Man in Love With You Forever.

Here's what she suggests:

● A soft, warm comforter is cozy to crawl under and can be sexually stimulating.

● Sheets with a silky or satiny feel can be a real turn-on.

"When it comes to color, you and your mate should shop together to find bedding you both find sexy," said Miss Cabot.

● Put a dimmer switch on your overhead light and use it to control the lighting to suit your mood. Try light bulbs of different colors — a red bulb, for example, can be very sexy.

● Thick, luxurious carpeting or sheepskin throw rugs can add to a romantic mood.

● Hang romantic pictures, such as couples strolling down the beach at sunset.

● Open the windows often enough to keep the room fresh.

● Ensure your privacy — put a lock on the door and curtains or drapes on the windows.

● A stereo can help set a romantic mood.

LOVESICK ANIMALS CAN DIE OF A BROKEN HEART!

By GARY NERO / Correspondent

Penguins mate for life . . . geese sometimes die of a "broken heart" . . . and snakes make whoopee for an entire day!

Those are just a few surprising facts about love in the animal kingdom.

Animals share with humans the ability to love and exhibit many of the same courting behaviors as we do — including showing affection, gift-giving, long engagements and monogamy.

ANIMAL ACTS: Two penguins begin their long, elaborate courtship.

Here are some amazing examples of animal romance:

PENGUINS

Penguins remain faithful for life to a mate they choose in adolescence. In courtship, wooing penguin couples walk side by side, rubbing beaks together and caressing flippers. Pairs consummate their union exactly two weeks after beginning their courtship.

BOWERBIRDS

Males of this species create snazzy "bachelor pads" to impress prospective mates.

The male bowerbird begins by building a small chamber out of twigs and grass on the forest floor. He carefully decorates the chamber with heaps of colored pebbles, berries and flowers, often crowning his work with a colorful fresh orchid.

All this activity is meant to attract a female. If he succeeds in luring one into his front yard, he dances and points with his beak to one colorful item after another and presents them to her until she's interested enough to enter the chamber.

But once the birds mate, the female moves out and builds her own nest in a tree. She then lays her eggs and raises their offspring alone!

ELEPHANTS

When a bull elephant courts his sweetheart, he does it in a big way. He moons after her, offering her any tidbit that comes his way, squirts water over her and rubs his head against her as she walks by.

The female flutters her enormous eyelashes at him as they entwine their trunks and even put their mouths together in the semblance of kissing!

BEAVERS

Beaver courtship sometimes begins with the female boxing her beloved's ear to subdue him.

She then watches him carefully — and if he shows respect for her, she stands on her hind legs, performs a little jig and bends down so that he can groom her back. This begins a relationship that will last for the rest of their lives, approximately 20 years.

Their first step after courtship is to construct their own new home from wood — often working up to 48 hours without stopping for food or drink.

SWANS AND GEESE

Swans mate for life. By the time they are ready to breed, trumpeter swans have already paired off — they become "engaged" even before they are sexually mature.

The same applies to geese. The bond between Canada geese is so strong that when one dies, the survivor shows definite signs of grieving. In one recorded case, a Canada gander that lost his mate refused food and soon was also found dead — in human terms, he died of a "broken heart."

CHEETAHS

Among the cat family, only cheetahs seem to form a permanent mating bond. When one is moved to another part of a zoo, the other will fret and pine, and become seriously ill if its mate is not returned. And when one of the pair dies, the other follows soon afterward.

CHAMELEONS AND SNAKES

The male chameleon uses his ability to make his skin change color rapidly to charm his prospective mate.

Nature has compensated the snake for his lack of limbs by endowing him with two reproductive organs. Among snakes, lovemaking can last an entire day!

How to be sexier — RIGHT NOW!

You can boost your sex appeal and improve your opportunities for romance by following a few tried-and-true tips!

"These techniques to increase sex appeal are based on studies of human attractiveness," said psychologist Robert Phillips.

"True sex appeal goes beyond surface beauty — it's an inner quality that can be developed."

Here's what he suggests:

- Agree with others — "People think others are more attractive when they agree with them," Phillips said.
- Smile — "Studies show those who smile look better. A smile lights up your face and tells others you're approachable," said Phillips, co-author of the book Love Tactics.
- Stand tall — You'll look sharp and alert, which will attract others. Good posture tells people that you're in charge of your life.
- Touch others — When you first meet someone, shake hands. After that, touch people when you feel the time is right.
- Let the other person talk — Listening enhances your sexual attractiveness.

"Ask people about their background, their job, their goals. When you focus on the other person they'll almost always be impressed with how bright and sexy you are."

A SMILING FACE makes people look better.

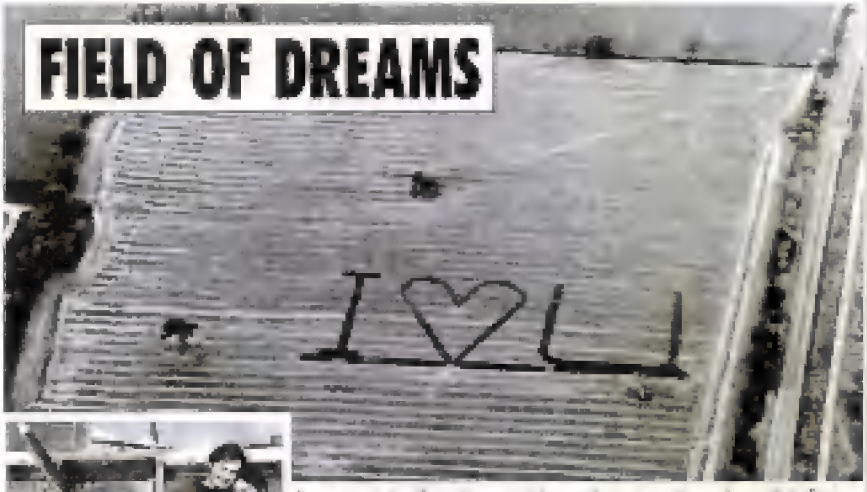
FIELD OF DREAMS



Love was in the air — and on the ground — for pilot Steve Hender when he flew over girlfriend Carole Bowcott's farm and saw this tender message plowed into a field. Steve was so touched that he quickly landed his plane and popped the question to his gal pal of two years. "I was just looking for an unusual way to tell Steve how I felt about him," said the Higham, England, bride-to-be. "I never dreamed it would work so well."

DOES YOUR MATE STILL LOVE YOU?

Take this test and find out!

Is your mate still in love with you? Take this easy 10-question test and find out.

It was especially designed for Weekly World News by a team of noted psychologists who specialize in relationships.

Answer each question "yes" or "no" and then check the scoring and analysis at the end of the quiz.

1. Does your partner sometimes surprise you with a "no occasion" gift?
2. When you're blue and out of sorts does your mate call during the day to check on how you're feeling?
3. Does your mate initiate an occasional cuddle or hug session?
4. When your partner's in the mood for love and you're not, does he or she generally bow to your wishes gracefully?
5. Does your mate make an effort to correct behavior or habits that displease you?
6. Is your partner quick to forgive you when you've been hurtful?
7. Is your mate respectful of your needs for privacy?
8. Does your partner sometimes complain that you don't spend enough time together?
9. When you become interested in something, does your partner make a special effort to share your interest?
10. When you aren't feeling well does your mate volunteer to take over some of your chores?

♥ ♥ ♥ ♥ ♥

SCORING: Give yourself one point for each "yes" answer. Analysis:

8 to 10 points — Congratulations. Your mate is so loving your life must seem like one long honeymoon.

5 to 7 points — Have no concern. Your partner loves you deeply but may not always show it.

4 points or less — Perhaps your mate would love you more intensely if you were more lovable. Review all the above questions and act on them. For example, call your partner at work when he or she is out of sorts, surprise your mate with an occasional "no occasion" gift and don't brood or hold a grudge when your partner's hurt your feelings. Do all the things you'd like your mate to do for you and he or she is bound to love you all the more.

How to tell if it's really TRUE LOVE!

By MARK SIMMS
Correspondent

Is it true love — or infatuation?

It might seem almost impossible to tell the difference between the two, but it can be done, says an expert.

"In any new relationship, you can tell if it's true love simply by analyzing your attitude and behavior not only toward that special someone, but toward life in general," said psychologist Dr. Herbert Freudenberger.

Here are some of the tell-tale signs of real love:

● "You'll find yourself in a perpetual good mood. You might whistle while you work or sing in the shower. Little annoyances will not bother you as much," said Dr. Freudenberger, a respected author.

● You let your guard down and feel free to be yourself. "True love allows people to be themselves in the company of the one they love," said Dr. Freudenberger.

When you're infatuated with someone, you go out of your way to present just the right image of yourself.

But when it's true love, you feel free to express your opinions about anything and you're not afraid to let your loved one see you with your hair mussed or without makeup.

● You notice a shift in your attitude toward single life. Going to a party on your own isn't fun anymore. Flirting with the opposite sex isn't as exciting.

Being alone doesn't seem independent anymore, it just feels plain lonely. Children seem less troublesome.

● You can't imagine being with anyone else. You stop looking at other single people as potential dates and realize that no one compares to your new love.

● You enjoy physical affection more. "Your hand will fit inside his like a glove. Having your arm around her will be as natural as breathing," said Dr. Freudenberger.

WOMEN'S CHOICE: Macho actor Clint Eastwood.

What women REALLY want from a man!

By JANE DILLAN / Correspondent

Women are sick of wimps — they'd rather romance "Dirty Harry" Clint Eastwood than sensitive singer Michael Bolton any day!

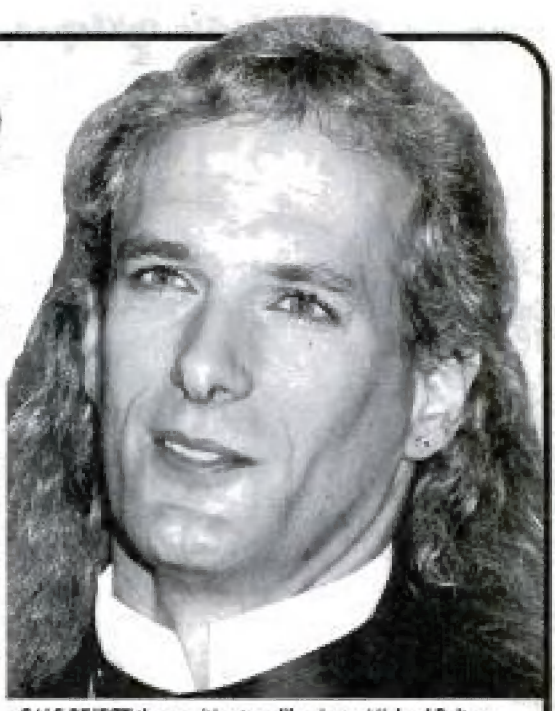
That's just one of the things top pollsters Brut/Yankelovich Partners discovered when they questioned 1,000 men and women to find out about relationships in the '90s.

When the researchers asked women which man they found more attractive — Clint or Michael — an overwhelming 60 percent selected the rugged screen star. Other findings among women:

- 89 percent of them like it when a man opens a door for them.
- 88 percent feel protected when they're with their man.
- 70 percent believe the man should pick up the check on a first date.
- 70 percent like to wear sexy clothes for their man.
- 65 percent find a casually dressed man sexier than one wearing a suit and tie.

Although 51 percent of men would rather drive an expensive sedan than a pickup truck, a surprising 58 percent of women find the pickup more appealing.

And all this should be great news for the "man of the '90s," because 80 percent of the guys interviewed said they would rather be like Clint — and 56 percent identified themselves as a "manly man." "Macho" has made a comeback in a big way. Only 44 percent of the guys identified with the "politically correct man," who's in tune with feminist beliefs and considers women equals in every aspect of life.



GALS REJECT the sensitive type like singer Michael Bolton.

Test yourself This quiz can help spice up your love life

By DIANE RESTIN / Correspondent

How sensuous are you?

To discover the answer, choose one response for each question in this quiz designed by psychologist Dr. Tracy Cabot for Weekly World News readers. Then tally your score and check it against the answer key at the end.

But before you start, Dr. Cabot, author of Marrying Later, Marrying Smarter, cautions: "Sexual and sensuous are not the same thing — someone could look really sexy, but not be sensuous.

"Sensuous means enjoying the pleasures of sensation — and sensuous people make great lovers."

1. My choice for bedtime dress would be: a) nothing, because being nude is sexy, b) skimpy underwear because it's enticing, c) flannel pajamas because they feel good.

2. I prefer to take: a) a long shower, b) a short shower, c) a long bath.

3. I like listening to music: a) as background while I work, b) hardly at all, c) with nothing else to distract me.

4. I think sleeping late is a) all right once in a while, b) a waste of time, c) great to do as often as I can.

5. I enjoy going for rides: a) because I like to get out of the house, b) just to get where I'm going, c) to enjoy the scenery.

6. When it comes to how long it takes me to eat, I: a) am not concerned with how fast I eat, b) eat quickly, c) linger over every morsel.

7. I put on perfume, cologne or after-shave a) whenever I'm going to be with people, b) hardly ever, c) almost every day.

8. I prefer to: a) go people watching, b) watch a construction project, c) watch the ocean and listen to the waves.

9. My favorite season is: a) fall, b) summer, c) spring.

10. I would rather be: a) at a toy store where I can watch kids play, b) at a clothing store where I can see sale items, c) at a bakery where I can bask in the smells.

SCORING: Give yourself two points for each "c" answer, one point for each "a" answer and no points for "b" answers. Then add up your total.

If you scored: 14 or more points — you are a sensuous person. You enjoy the pleasures of your body and are probably a great lover.

8-13 points — you're average in sensuousness. You could have more pleasure in life if you pay more attention to your five senses.

0-7 points — you need to get more in touch with your body by trying new sensual experiences, such as massage. There have been plenty of books written to help you become more sensual and the reference librarian at your local library can help you find them.

Eating chocolate is GOOD for your teeth, reveals shocking new study

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Chocolate isn't as bad for you as most people believe, shocking new studies reveal — and the yummy stuff may actually be good for your teeth!

University researchers here found that people who ate a pound of chocolate each week for three years had less tooth decay than those who never ate chocolate.

American studies have found that chocolate helps prevent cavities because cocoa fat coats the teeth, halting damage done by sugar.

CAPTAIN PRISONER!

Leader of spacecraft that landed March 25 is whisked away by authorities!

PODOLSK, Russia — The captain of a shimmering silver starship that landed in a Russian park last month was captured and is being held prisoner!

That's the shocking word from a Russian ham radio operator who saw the ball-shaped craft land here on March 25 and watched as law enforcement agents overpowered the extraterrestrial captain and took him into custody.

Reports of the incident were first published in an underground Russian newspaper and later picked up by European wire services.

By CHARLOTTE BEARD
Correspondent

But those reports only confirmed that the starship had landed — and totally disregarded the violent way the ship's captain was taken away.

"The captain of the UFO is in a Russian prison and Heaven knows what the Russians are going to do with him," said Jacques Gaits, a ham radio operator who spoke with the Russian ham from his base in Paris.

"My contact said the captured extraterrestrial was dressed in shiny red overalls — the others were dressed entirely in silver — and was obviously in charge. He was taken by Russian police while he and his crew were surveying the landing site.

"He offered no resistance and actually seemed very gentle. But the agents still hit him with a club, stuffed him in the back of a black van and sped away."

Gaits refused to identify the Russian ham operator because he feared Russian police would arrest the man. But ham operators in Sweden, Italy and Japan also heard the man's report and backed up what Gaits said in published reports around the world.

For their part, Russian officials deny the allegations and insist the international wire reals by the Russia government should not be believed. They point to wire reports quoting several eyewitnesses who all described the aliens the same way — as being between 10 and 12 feet tall and having very small heads.

They were reportedly accompanied by a fireplug-shaped robot that appeared to be taking air and soil samples.

The visitors were in the park for nearly 10 minutes before policemen arrived and arrested the captain.

According to the Russian ham operator, the other aliens retreated into the ship as soon as the police arrived, but the leader stayed outside.

After the leader was taken into custody, the ship ascended into the sky, where it seemed to take the shape of a disc as it flew off, witnesses said.

Genrikh Silanov, head of the Podolsk Geophysicial Laboratory, supported the stories when he conducted tests at the landing site that proved extraterrestrials had been there.

Silanov noted a 60-foot depression and four deep dents that clearly show where the craft said. High-ranking U.S. officials refused to comment officially, but privately they expressed concern that the captain of an alien ship was manhandled and arrested.

"This is a very delicate and dangerous situation," said one Washington-based intelligence expert, who asked not to be identified. "The Russians don't know who or what they are dealing with — nobody does for sure.

"There could be reprisals. And if there are, our entire planet could be held responsible for this intergalactic act of espionage."

There are also fears in Wash-

of technology these extraterrestrials are privy to," the source said. "Many Americans feel the
